BGU Students In Washington March

By JUDY EICHER
Assistant Feature Editor
Priests and ministers, black nationalists, artists and entertainers, members of the American Nazi Party, a special "Hell, no, we won't go!" contingent and 12 BGSU students were among the 25 different groups involved in Saturday's peace march on the Pentagon.

Most newspapers estimated the throng at 35,000, but others said that more than 100,000 persons were assembled at a pep rally before the Lincoln Memorial at noon, Sat.

The actual march on the Pentagon began around 3:30 p.m., with the demonstrators slowly moving across Memorial Bridge to the Pentagon entrance.

It took four to five hours to get everyone over there," said BGSU participant Dave Oppen, sophomore in the College of Liberal Arts. There was almost no counter - demonstration, everyone moved peacefully until the demonstrators tried to enter the Pentagon."

According to newspaper accounts armed guards stood at every exit and entrance to the building and on the roofs. Demonstrators crowded around the fences and the troops. Youths helped people up nearby hills while others urged them on with cries of "come on up! We need you here. This is neither illegal nor dangerous."

Both Oppen and Steve Lipson, sophomore in the College of Business Administration feels that the marchers did not use the violence they have been charged with. "MP's clubbed people and used tear gas," said Lipson.

We wanted to convince those men with the billy clubs and tear gas that we wouldn't have been there if it hadn't been for them. We have to convince the government that the populace doesn't want war," said Oppen.

Saturday afternoon someone had placed a flower on the seat of a policeman's motorcycle. "He became very upset about the whole thing," said Lipson, "but basically he was bothered because of people trying to get peace."

Both Oppen and Lipson emphasized that the "hippie" type of people were not involved in the demonstration. "The type of Haight-Asbury drug and LSD user was not there. The people ranged from businessmen to veteran to one very old lady who was collecting donations," said Oppen.

"Everyone was very friendly," said Oppen and Lipson, who went with five BG students on one of nine Cleveland buses. "We shared food and built bonfires. There were students there from California, four buses came from Oberlin, and 12 buses from New York City College."

Both Oppen and Lipson, "non-draft card burners," feel that the aim of the march was "eternal peace with everyone-even your next door neighbor."

"I think that if the students here really knew what happened they would have wanted to have gone because they basically don't want war," said Oppen.

As the crowd listened to baby doctor Benjamin Spock cry, "The enemy is Lyndon Johnson; the war is disastrous in every way, apprehension about the estimated 5,000 troops flown to guard the Pentagon was mixed with enthusiasm."

Demonstrators held signs, some printed by the National Mobilization Committee, organizer of the rally, and many more handmade but expressive -- "Napalm--Johnson's Baby Powder," "Save Lives, Not LBJ's Face."

Newspapers reported that by 9 p.m. most out of town protestors had left, but at midnight Saturday 2,000 to 3,000 persons holding their ground at the Pentagon. When the peaceable assembly permit expired at midnight Sunday, 240 men and women who refused to leave were arrested. The total number of arrests were 679. Author Norman Mailer was the only one given a jail sentence.

There were also speeches by Dick Gregory, Vietnamese and British peace leaders, and a performance by Peter, Paul, and Mary. Before the group sang "Wasn't It A Terrible Time?" and "The Wheel of Life" Peter Yarrow, of Peter, Paul and Mary, said "In all our hearts, we believe that we must end this war before we cease to exist as a moral and decent nation."

Egypt, Israel Renew Fighting Across Canal

Cairo (AP)-In renewed fighting in the Middle East yesterday, Egypt said it shot down one Israeli Mirage jet fighter and damaged four tanks on the east bank of the Suez Canal. Cairo military communiqués reported Israeli shells were directed against the city of Suez and the oil refineries on the outskirts.

It is thought that the Israeli military action could be the prelude to drastic retaliation for the sinking of the Israeli destroyer Elath off the Sinai Peninsula Saturday night. The Elath was sunk apparently with the Soviet-built Styx ship to ship missiles and possibly with the aid of Soviet technicians. Figures released yesterday said the sinking killed 19 Israelis, left 28 missing and 91 wounded.

Israeli government leaders conferred with military officers in Jerusalem yesterday. Officials were tight-lipped over what course the government might take. However, in a broadcast to the Israeli nation, Prime Minister Levi Eshkol called the Egyptian attack "a wanton and unprovoked attack. The blood of our sailors, like the blood of our civilians and soldiers will not be shed wantonly."

Eban Talks Hard Line

And in the United Nations yesterday, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban challenged any idea that his country might soften its position on seeking a Middle East solution without face-to-face talks. He said direct talks were "the best way" but did not say they were the only way.

Eban used even stronger terms in rejecting suggestions that Israel withdraw from the territories it occupied in the war last June. "Until the new peace map is negotiated, the present cease-fire map will be fully maintained," he added.

U.S. Arms Shipments Resumed

In Washington, press officer Robert J. McCloskey said the decision falls within the "spirit of restraint" aimed at holding down the Near East arms race.

But the State Department spokesman noted also that the Soviets have been sending large shipments to their Arab friends since the war and have offered military equipment to others.

The Arab countries which previously received U.S. arms need spare parts to keep up their defenses, he said.

Besides Israel, the countries to get the resumed U.S. military shipments are Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Morocco, Libya, and Tunisia.

Israel will receive some planes promised before the June war as well as parts, repair equipment and components for items such as radios which are assembled in Israel, McCloskey said.

The shipments to the Arab countries will consist largely of communication equipment, trucks, parts and construction materials plus a "small number" of aircraft promised to Libya and Morocco before the conflict, said McCloskey.

U.N. Day Observed

About 65 people stood in the Amphitheater yesterday in a service for Peace observance of United Nations Day.

Presiding at the noon-service was Rick Helwig, president of the student body.

The main speakers were Joe Scott, president of the Newman Foundation, Paul Hammock, president of the United Christian Fellowship, David Alex president of Atid, Paul Reuben, president of the World Student Association and President Jerome.

The Sabbath Prayer was led by David Alex and the Litany for International Peace was led by Paul Hammock.

Rick Helwig spoke of today's student as the answer to the peace of tomorrow.

President Jerome's proclamation speech was mainly for the abolishment of dissent and the conflicts which make people fight.

He commented on the new Middle East flare-up by saying, "Because of what is happening in the Middle East, there is more need for a world organization. Through this organization there is all the more reason for the hope of peace in the world."

Father Trautwein, pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, thanked all those people that helped make United Nations Day possible and told of the strivings that this organization has made in promoting world peace.

300 Pints Of Blood Needed For Quota

Three hundred pints of blood must be obtained by tomorrow to meet the minimum quota set by the American Red Cross for BGSU's contribution to the Blood Bank. Donations will be taken from 11 a.m.-5 p.m. today and 10 a.m.-4 p.m. tomorrow in the Student Medical Center (not in Memorial Hall as in previous years).

If the quota of 300 pints is reached, the Wood County Chapter of the American Red Cross will replace, free of charge, any blood needed by students or faculty members of BGSU while anywhere in the United States this year. A donors immediate family is included in this plan. Bowling Green has never failed to meet the requirement and has often surpassed it in previous years.

Craig Morton, co-chairman of the campus Blood Bank Committee, urges all dormitory groups, fraternities, sororities, faculty and staff members to conduct extensive enrollment campaigns among their associates since from 350 to 400 people are needed to obtain the 300 pint quota.

Volunteers must be between the ages of 18 and 60. Donors between the ages of 18 and 21 must have the signed parental consent forms obtainable at their dorms or in the U.A.O. office.

Although walk-ins are invited, to prevent any unnecessary waiting it is asked that appointments be made at the Medical Center ahead of time. Refreshments await all donors after their contribution is taken.

The collection will be under the direction of the American Red Cross and their trained nurses and personnel, assisted by the University physicians, plus the help of Alpha Phi Omega, Omega Phi Alpha, and Angel Flight.

'Murder...' On Stage Thursday

It looks like another sellout week for University Theater if the lively Monday morning ticket sales are any indication of the interest in this week's presentation, "Murder in the Cathedral."

T.S. Eliot's historical drama, directed by Jann Graham Glenn, a doctoral candidate in speech, will be performed in the Main Auditorium of University Hall at 8:15 p.m., Thursday through Saturday, Oct. 26, 27, and 28.

Tickets are now on sale at the box office in University Hall and are going fast, officials said.

"Murder in the Cathedral," written in 1935 for performance in the Canterbury Cathedral, is the best known of Eliot's seven verse dramas, and centers around the historical figure, Thomas A. Beckett. The drama also explores the meaning of the act of martyrdom.

Sophomore Robert Barton plays the Archbishop Thomas a Beckett, while other major performers include James Erbe, Leonard Dursio, and Steven Cohen, who play the parts of priests.

Playing dual roles of knights and tempters are Richard C. Lohman, James R. Burton, Tracy J. Davis, and Peter Brouwer. The women of Canterbury are played by Suzanne P. Radloff, Olga Demidow, Barbara L. Wismer, Maureen G. Brigham, Stephanie Ferguson, and Mary Gallagher.

John Hepler, associate professor of speech will provide his 200th set design at the University.

Reserved seats may be obtained at the University Theater box office for the regular admission price of $1 for adults and $.25 for children, and $.10 for University students. Reservations may be made by calling 353-8411, ext. 3303, from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. daily.

Miami U. Senate Refuses To Adopt Quarter System

The Miami University Senate refused to adopt a quarter system and reaffirmed an earlier decision to remain on the tri-mester system in a meeting held Monday.

The Senate, which is composed of faculty members and staff, was acting on a request of the Ohio Board of Regents asking all state assisted universities to change to (Continued on Page 4)

Presidential Problems

Two years ago this month, President Johnson was as exultant as the winning quarterback of the MAC.

The first session of the 89th Congress -- "the best Congress ever assembled . . . my Congress," Mr. Johnson called it -- drew to a triumphant close. Behind it was the flood of Great Society programs, and Mr. Johnson's broad legislation was the talk of the country.

This year there will be no celebrations. Mr. Johnson's rapport with Congress has vanished. He doesn't like what they're doing to him anymore.

The 10 percent surcharge, considered by the President to be his most important piece of legislation this year, has just been handed back to him by some of his closest friends in the Capital. Democratic and Republican leaders of the tax-writing House ways and Means Committee have pronounced the bill officially "dead."

The House of Representatives recently excluded poverty program workers from a general government employees' pay increase. And, last week the House voted 238 to 164 to order the President to reduce nonmilitary spending $7.1 billion in the current fiscal year.

Only 67 of Mr. Johnson's 172 legislative requests (less than half) have been approved by Congress, and lawmakers are talking of giving up and going home.

Even the "continuing resolutions," normally routine measures to tide over agencies until the money bills pass, are in trouble. One such resolution was temporarily defeated, and then narrowly saved a few days ago, causing White House aides and congressional leaders to worry about the fate of others.

The "Chicago Daily News Service" interviewed leading lawmakers and administration officials to try and determine what has gone wrong between Mr. Johnson and Capitol Hill. The responses were varied:

"Johnson's magic was a myth all along," said Rep. James G. O'Hara (D-Mich.). "We came off a real jag in the 89th Congress, when we had the votes, into the morning after when we didn't."

"Johnson is not coming across well to the public or Congress," said Sen. George Smathers (D-Fla.). "He was accustomed as a majority leader to dealing on a personal basis. He hasn't been able to do all that personal contact work in the White House, he's so busy on Vietnam and other things. So he's had to work with makeshift, patchwork relationships and the whole thing has finally broken down."

"He had 30 of us freshman Republicans over to the White House," said Rep. Jack McDonald (R-Mich.). "He talked to us, and he charmed us, but we just didn't trust him."

It is clear from these and other comments that the President's problems are a combination of politics and personality, of not enough troops in Congress and too many troops in South Vietnam.

The News believes that Mr. Johnson's troubles are serious -- for the President, the Congress and for the country. The President is not taking them lying down, but is fighting back in his fashion, seemingly to reveal his new role as "battler-against-the-consensus."

The factors that underlie the troubles are not likely to change soon. The expectation indicates that conflicts will continue and perhaps worsen between now and election day, 1968.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Anti-War Demonstrations Opposed By Marines Fighting In Vietnam

In the Oct. 17 issue of the B-G News, you published a - what can I call it? A petition, I guess. You published a petition signed by people calling themselves members of the Ohio Committee for a Reasonable Settlement in Vietnam. Since I believe in the equal time policy, I would like to answer those people.

How can those people call themselves Americans? How can they stand up and say truthfully, "I am an American"? Sure, in our country we have the right of freedom of opinion and speech. I'm not arguing their basic rights in this letter. But have these so-called Americans ever stopped to think how their activities are affecting our guys in Vietnam?

My uncle, Richard Doty, is in Vietnam now, and not as a Marine. He is not, in fact, connected in any way with the military. He is there in a strictly civilian capacity, as a corporation representative for McDonnell Douglas, working on the Phantom fighter-bomber. I would like to share with all those good Americans part of a letter I received from him this week.

"One thing you might pass on to some of the kids in school, though, and this is for me and for all of these Marines over here, is to knock off the peace demonstrations! This is a hard enough war to fight, with out all of us getting disgusted with our own folks back home.

"Every demonstration in the states for peace or to stop this war is really blown up by the Reds. To hear some of their news broadcasts, all North Vietnam has to do is hold out for another 6 months and the U. S. will quit.

"It sure does make these Marines mad, to read about the people, who are supposedly Americans, demonstrating the way they do. The thing to do is to put pressure on the politicians in Washington to let the Army, Navy, and Marines fight this war their way.

"I know it would be all over with already if they would just turn these guys loose."

Well, all you Americans, there you have it in black and white, from somebody with a little first hand knowledge. If you doubt the authenticity, feel free to drop a round to my dorm and I will show you the letter.

What's that you say? A petition isn't a peace demonstration? Well then, what is it? Oh sure, you're not carrying signs and chanting "Bring the boys back from Vietnam," but you might as well be. A petition, to my way of thinking, is only a non-marching type of demonstration.

How do you feel now, all you good conscientious citizens, to find out you are helping the Reds? Doesn't it just give you a good feeling inside to know that somebody approves of what you're doing? I know it sure would make me feel good to think that I was really giving our guys a helping hand like all you lovely people.

But you know what? I don't have the guts. It would make me feel like a Communist.

True Christianity Answers Life's Daily Struggles

In the Thursday, Oct. 19, issue of the B-G News, J. P. Wyndham wrote a stimulating article, full of considerable insight. He lamented the terrible plight of the normal person caught up in the trivialities of daily life and the constant struggle to build and protect the ego, hurting and "killing" others and himself in his actions.

I agree for the most part with Mr. Wyndham's description of the condition of humanity and with his solution to the cruelty and selfishness implied.

Mr. Wyndham said, "The solution is understanding. It is love." He also said, "... it seems that no kind of Truths help much, religious or otherwise." Here I disagree.

Isn't the basis of Christianity love and understanding? True, religion, as commonly practiced today, is not much help in solving man's inhumanity. But the religion or "Christianity" that many people practice today is not that described in "The New Testament."

Don't "John" 3:16 and "I Corinthians" 13 say what Mr. Wyndham said and a little more? Doesn't true Christianity provide the solution that Mr. Wyndham suggests?

Perhaps he overlooked the most effective way of achieving and exercising the love he suggests.

'LIKE IT SHOULD BE' - Plans For Ashley -

Well, he has done it again! Good old (at least he "sounds" mature) Ashley Brown has written another thoroughly stirring (or is it "disgusting") article --- all the more reason for this observer to take pen in hand in response.

Remember back a few years ago, when all Ashley did was to represent the Young Democrats on campus? Those were the days! At least then, we knew something of what Ashley was trying to say. It is true that he, even then, persisted in writing and speaking with beaucoup de generalities. His points of concern just did not clarify themselves, but he "sounded" like he knew what he was talking about.

Time passes --- in the here-and-now, there is a changed Ashley. Now he is the spokesman for the world (what a burden!). He represents the Underdog, the Common Man, the Poor Unfortunates, Les Miserables (pardonnez-moi). He speaks out, exemplifying that old cry: "I shall be heard."

Ashley is heard. Some people agree with part of what he says; some agree with all he has to say; some never will agree with him. This brings to mind another statement from history: "You can fool all of the people some of the time, some of the people all of the time; but you can't fool all of the people all of the time." (apologies to our departed President).

The News welcomes letters to the editor. Letters should be typewritten and signed by the author and carry his typewritten name, address and phone number.

As many letters as possible will be published within the limits of space, good taste and laws of libel. The News reserves the right to edit letters more than 300 words in length.

dent).

This observer (part of the latter category) accepts Ashley's right, guaranteed to him by the Constitution of the United States, to speak up and to be heard. And, again calling to mind a time-worn statement: (was it Voltaire?) "I may not agree with what you have to say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it."

Believing that the world (which he represents) should hear the gems of intellect which flow from the lips and pen of Ashley, this observer has taken upon himself to organize a committee (bureaucracy!) which bears the initials SABBSA. This represents "Send Ashley Brown Back to South America." --- The purpose of the committee is to procure for Ashley a one-way ticket to Brazil.

A local travel bureau was contacted, and the cost would be in the neighborhood of $568.00. (first-class: it's the only way to fly). Of course, this includes all of Ashley's expenses for 30 days. After that time, the local SABBSA committee in Brazil will likewise send Ashley to another unsuspecting South American nation.

If it works well, and if all the people of South America aren't killed off in the ensuing revolutions, arrangements will be made to send him on to Africa (SABA), Europe (SABE), and Asia (SABI).

Letters of inquiry have been sent to NASA headquarters, requesting information concerning the first manned craft to the moon. (It is hoped that a seat can be secured for Ashley). Responses so far indicate that it would not be a soft landing.

Donations may be made payable to SABBSA, c/o The News. This observer gladly gives the first $10.00.

So speak up, Ashley. Remember, though: Big Brother is watching you!

What Price Insecurity!

We usually don't mind you burdening our patience with Mr. Greenfield's flights of fancy, but when he begins to insult the intelligence and integrity of 3100 Catholic students, we would hope that your newspaper would have sufficient decency to demand fact, not fancy.

In the diatribe on the Catholic Mass appearing in a recent issue of the News, Mr. Greenfield is either dishonest or deluded. He claims he attended the 4:00 p.m. Mass in our chapel last Sunday and quotes the gospel to prove it.

The gospel quoted is that of Sexagesima Sunday, which this year fell on January 29, during the Semester vacation. He mocks the sign of the cross, preferring to be clever rather than civil. He exhibits the poorest of taste in ridiculing holy water. He claims the pulpit is used to preach money. Three thousand students will give evidence to the lie. Money has never been mentioned in this chapel.

He ridicules us for urging students to attend a marriage preparation course. We have no such course this semester, as a quick glance through any Sunday bulletin could have told him. But even if we did, what on earth is so terribly wrong with urging students to attend such a course?

It seems the whole article was written to grind an ax, which some editor might think cute, but most would only pity. It is so simple to build a straw man and then knock it over. But why must Mr. Greenfield insult so many people to accomplish his wonderful feat with the straw man. Is he that insecure? Or is the B-G News just that hard up for print that it must resort to such drivel? One would hope for so much more from a university journal.

Dr. Nwanze: Three Profs In One

By JIM MARINO
Staff Writer

A citizen of Nigeria, scholar from England, and teacher in America all are Dr. Michael C. Nwanze, newest University faculty member of the political science department.

Born in Asaba, Nigeria, Dr. Nwanze lived in his homeland for some 20 years before traveling to England to attend the City of London College and the University of Leeds, where he received his Ph. D. degree.

With all this backgrounding, Dr. Nwanze finds himself uniquely qualified to comment on the people and educations of Nigeria, Great Britain and the United States.

"I grew up in a medium sized town along the banks of the Niger River near the newly formed nation of Biafara," he said.

"I received all my education up to the college level in this country under the direction of English teachers. These teachers later inspired me to go to England for university training."

Before Dr. Nwanze left for England, he served two years as clerk for the High Court of Justice in Noltsha, Nigeria.

Then, financed by his father, a tailor and draper in Asaba, Dr. Nwanze left for the City of London College.

"I had no language problems and made friends very easily," he explained. "In fact, I was booked weekends in advance while in England with people inviting me to their homes for several days."

England was a rather surprising country to him. "For ages my people have always thought of the Englishman, like the American, as owning many automobiles, living in highly industrialized cities with little of no manual labor to do," he said. "I was surprised twice—in both countries—to the extent which poverty exists."

An active sportsman in lawn tennis and chairman of the debating society while in college, Dr. Nwanze found his extracurriculars as welcome change from the pressures of English university life.

"The academic competitiveness in England is much more fierce than here in America," he said. "But the student bodies are much smaller and the professors can take time with individuals."

"I wanted to major in economics and eventually go into the diplomatic foreign service until I met an inspirational political science professor."

"I then took my bachelor's degree from City of London College in 1963 after doing some research at Oxford, and went on for my doctorate at the University of Leeds."

Dr. Nwanze was a scholarship student to Leeds, and upon receiving his Ph. D., taught at the University of Exeter, England, from 1965 till 1967.

"English students are much more curious than American students. American students seem almost inhibited in the classroom. I would like to inspire them and get them to ask questions of me," he said.

Presently an instructor in Political Science 201, Dr. Nwanze plans to initiate a new course second semester in African politics. He has lectured all over England on the governments of his continent, and has received invitations since his arrival in America to lecture at Yale University, Northwestern University, and Ohio University.

"Most people are terribly ignorant of African affairs, and the continent is so alive, people should know a great deal more, he be-moaned.

"I enjoy being in America very much," he continued. "This country is so beautiful, and to think, I can teach here as well."

"I find Bowling Green University rather a typical mid-central university. The students seem content with small, secret fraternity and sorority parties which I don't understand," he said.

"The facilities are new, but rather crowded compared to English universities. I am having a very interesting and informative time here."

The Dr.'s homeland Nigeria, is now in great turmoil and civil war. He has been home for one month only in the past seven years.

"I have not been able to send a letter to my parents or receive mail from them over a year now. They don't know that I am in the United States. I'm quite concerned."

Upon finishing at Bowling Green, Dr. Nwanze will complete his lecture tours and visit friends he made here during his first visit to this country in 1965.

"Then, I will go back to England and await the chance to return to my home. My goal is to teach political science to my own people in geria," he said.

Munich Lawyer, 'People Protector'

MUNICH (AP)—Alfred Meier, a Munich lawyer, says organizations have long looked after birds and animals and that a stray kitten stirs more public sympathy than someone unjustly arrested.

He registered his new organization, Society For the Protection of People, and said it is to help fellow citizens who are in trouble with society and its institutions.

Depends on the giant. Actually, some giants are just regular kinds of guys. Except bigger.

And that can be an advantage.

How? Well, for one thing, you've got more going for you. Take Ford Motor Company. A giant in an exciting and vital business. Thinking giant thoughts. About marketing Mustang. Cougar. A city car for the future.

Come to work for this giant and you'll begin to think like one.

Because you're dealing with bigger problems, the consequences, of course, will be greater. Your responsibilities heavier. That means your experience must be better—more complete. And so, you'll get the kind of opportunities only a giant can give.

Giants just naturally seem to attract top professionals. Men that you'll be working with, and for. Marketing and sales pros working hard to accelerate your advancement.

Because there's more to do, you'll learn more. In more areas. You may handle as many as three different assignments in your first two years.

You'll develop a talent for making hard-nosed, imaginative decisions. And you'll know how these decisions affect the guts of the operation. At the grass roots. Because you'll have been there.

If you'd like to be a giant yourself, and you've got better ideas in marketing and sales, see the man from Ford when he visits your campus. Or send your resume to Ford Motor Company, College Recruiting Department.

You and Ford can grow bigger together.

What's it like to sell for a giant?

Actually I'm quite big on it.

EAST LANSING

Football coach Duffy Daugherty has suspended six top players from this year's Spartan team for breaking training regulations. Three of the men are starters for Michigan State and will not be on the team roster for the big game against the Irish of Notre Dame on Saturday. The violations center around late hours kept by the players. The coach withheld the men's names, as he said, "in accord with the best interests of the Spartan football family."

Lambda Gamma Seek House After IFC OK

Lambda Gamma fraternity was formally recognized as a local fraternity at a meeting of Interfraternity Council Monday.

The spokesman for the fraternity Leslie E. Stern. Stern explained to the council that the fraternity has been investigating housing facilities, but that at present is located in a wing of Conklin Hall.

The fraternity has 15 members and is not associated with any national fraternity.

Although the fraternity has been recognized, it cannot have a vote on the IFC or participate in any interfraternity activities such as intermural sports. Participation in these events can only take place when Lambda Gamma becomes formally associated with the Greek community.

Council defeated "Operation Rush," a proposal made by president Bruce Fisher to increase the number of fraternity rushers. The proposal would have required each fraternity to hold at least one rush function in freshman residence halls before the end of the first semester.

The council passed an amendment to its constitution making transfer students and freshmen who have at least a 2.0 grade point average eligible for rush.

Council also discussed a proposal that would allow the period of open rush to be instituted following the publishing of mid-term grades during the first semester of the school year, and extended to the end of the first semester.

At this time any upper-classmen and any freshmen attaining a 2.0 at mid-term during his first semester on campus will be eligible for pledging.

a common calendar. The Board had recommended the quarter system.

Most other state schools have either accepted the quarter system or are in the process of doing so as is Bowling Green. Wright still is under the tri-mester system, but is considering the quarter proposal.

The Miami Senate also adopted a motion reaffirming its decision of last year to remain on the tri-mester system indefinitely. The motion stated the decision "reflects the overwhelming preference of the faculty, and that it promises significant benefits to the state in superior plant utilization and opportunities for acceleration without posing any known problems of compatibility."

The Senate members also moved to supply the board of regents with a summary of findings by the tri-mester evaluation committee.

Former Librarians Honored

Five former head librarians at the University will receive special recognition at the formal dedication of the new library, Nov. 3-4.

Dr. James R. Overman, Dr. Paul F. Leedy, Dr. Frank C. Ogg, Edmon Low, and J. Kenneth Cameron will be recognized for their service to Bowling Green's library program at the dedication luncheon Nov. 4. Three other head librarians will be honored posthumously.

Dr. Overman was the librarian when Bowling Green opened its doors in 1914. Other administrative and teaching duties at the young college demanded much of his time and in 1915 he turned his library duties over to Marie Simpson.

When Mabel E. Marshall was appointed library director in 1919, Bowling Green's book collection scarcely filled a large room. The new library houses 640,000 volumes and has room for more than a million volumes.

Ethel M. Blum, along with Dr. Leedy, now Bowling Green's vice president of academic affairs and provost, served the longest stint as director. Miss Blum was the director from 1921-1938 and was in charge when the University's first library building was opened in 1927.

The 40-year-old building, now the Graduate School headquarters, was built to serve a maximum enrollment of 1,000 students and was acclaimed the "finest library in Ohio."

Most of the current collection of library material was added under the administration of Dr. Leedy, head librarian from 1943-1961, a period of vast expansion of the University.

Dr. Leedy, a faculty member since 1938, supervised the expansion and improvement of facilities and services for a growing student enrollment, won an increase in the book budget, and worked closely with department heads to fill gaps in book resources and build the first graduate library collection.

Others directors included Mr. Low, Mr. Cameron and Dr. Ogg. Mr. Low, head librarian from 1938-40, is currently a member of the library science department at the University of Michigan. Mr. Cameron, who held the post from 1940-41, now is chief of reader services at Marquette University.

Dr. Ogg, professor of mathematics and Bowling Green faculty member since 1931, served as library director from 1941-42.

The present library director, Dr. A. Robert Rogers, also will take part in the ceremonies. Dr. Rogers joined the Bowling Green faculty in 1959 as assistant library director and was appointed to his present post seven years ago.

SUMMER FLYER: Miss Phyllis Lebo, of Hamburg, New York, returns to BG after flying as a United Air Lines stewardess during her summer vacation. Miss Lebo, a senior, will act as a campus representative to interest other coeds in flying for the airline.

Coed Moonlights In 'Wild Blue Yonder'

By TERRY RYAN
Feature Writer

You say you've wanted to be an airline stewardess ever since you were 10 years old, and to prove it you've been watching reruns of "12 O'clock High" while reciting "coffee, tea or milk" to anyone who happens to walk by?

These things may help, but Phyllis Lebo, senior in the College of Education, knows what it really takes to become an airline stewardess. Phyllis moonlights as the campus representative for United Air Lines, and her job during the school term is to promote the airlines on campus. "I make sure the girls know about it by giving speeches in the dormitories," she said.

"In these speeches I explain the training a girl must go through to be a stewardess and answer any questions that might come up."

"I don't interview girls for the airlines," she added, "I merely get them ready for the airline representatives when they arrive later in the year."

Altogether, there are 25 campus representatives in the United States, including two in Ohio. The other in this state is located at Ohio State University.

"When the program first began," Phyllis said, "there were only six campus representatives in the nation and one was in Bowling Green. Since the University's representative graduated last June, interviews were held and I was chosen successor."

In addition to her job as campus representative during the school year, Phyllis serves as stewardess with United Air Lines during the summer. In order to do this she was required to go through 5 1/2 weeks of concentrated study at the training center just south of Chicago.

"In this training," Phyllis said, "we were not just learning how to pour coffee. We had to learn how to act in case of an emergency situation, we had medical training and we learned some technical aspects of flying," she said.

"This information comes in handy when a passenger wants to make certain that he is safe," she said. "We have to be able to answer all questions he may ask, or he may panic."

"Last summer one passenger panicked when the pilot announced that we might be running into bad weather in Chicago."

"The man wanted off the plane. In mid-air he wanted off the plane! We finally calmed him down by making a bet with him that we'd make it safely, and we did."

Phyllis compared her job to college when she said it is ten times harder than high school but 100 times more fun. "And you meet so many people," she added. "It's good to go to college for the experience because you learn to live with people."

"You learn how to meet new people and new situations with confidence," she said, "and that's what it takes in a job like mine."

Phyllis has such an assurance in herself and her work that one would expect her to ask you to fasten your safety belt every time you sat down with her, whether in a plane or on a living room chair.

On one flight, Phyllis played gin rummy with a professional card player and during another flight discussed communism with a Hungarian who lived under it. "To talk to someone first-hand about something like that is to really understand," she said.

"Of course there are some days when you just don't want to meet new people," she added, "but when you get on that plane, you always see someone that you might want to talk to."

"For instance, my roommate had the Rolling Stones on one of her flights and another girl had Frank Sinatra."

During the summer Phyllis, who has been further west than Bowling Green, flew from the East Coast to the West Coast, visiting Los Angeles, Miami, Tampa, Portland, Boston and Tijuana, Mexico.

"My first flight was an easy one," she said, "but I think I forgot everything I ever learned. In fact, I did forget everything."

On one of her trips Phyllis said that the latches weren't secure on the food cabinets -- a fact no one discovered until everyone was fastened safely in his seat during takeoff.

"I had to sit there," she said, "and watch cups, saucers, salad and raspberry pudding slide by me down the aisle past the passengers. They didn't mind, though. As long as they get their cocktails, they're happy."

In other experiences, Phyllis has poured ginger ale or coffee on passengers. "Either the plane jerked or I did," she said. "Things like that just happen."

Following graduation, Phyllis plans to work for United Air Lines for a year or two. "I definitely want my degree first," she said. "I wouldn't place anything above it."

"In a few years, then, I can teach. You can always teach if you have a degree," she added, "but you can't always fly --- only when you're young."

Romantic Latin Reveals 'Secret'

By RAFAEL E.
RODRIGUEZ-GUERRERO
Special Writer

Some people call us "Don Juans." Others call us liars. But all of them agree on one name; Latin American Lovers.

In Latin America, we do not know why North Americans call us lovers. But after living for a while in the United States, observing your dating system and seeing how other Americans treat their girls, then it is understandable why they call us lovers.

The whole thing is based upon the following. In the United States men and women are on an equal position; in fact, they practically follow the same way of life. But in Latin America, the system is different. The woman is more than the man in some things, and the man is more than the woman in others.

For instance, the man is the boss: his word is the last word. But at the same time, he is the servant. That is; he has to please a woman, and make her feel as though she is the greatest woman in the world.

Sometimes, we are accused of being liars. But what kind of a lie is it to exaggerate the true beauty of a girl, since we are only emphasizing what is already true? Some other people say that we are liars because we usually deny, with an excuse, something wrong which we have done.

Assume, for instance, that I have a girlfriend. If, for some reason, I have been with another girl, and my girlfriend asks me where I have been, I lie. I might tell her that I had to go to some very important meeting. I would do this because in Latin America we have an old proverb which says: "If your eyes do not see it, your heart will not feel it." Of course, in some cases, girls will not believe what I say. But in any case, they will not know what I was doing and will not be hurt.

It is always easy to recognize a Latin American Lover upon meeting him. This is a usual dialogue of a Latin American Lover when he first meets a girl:

L. A. L. "Hello (Kissing her hand), it is a real pleasure to meet you..."

Girl: "Nice to meet you, too."

L. A. L. : "I have to tell you something. It's being a long time since I saw a girl with such beautiful eyes (choosing her best part) like yours."

Girl: "Oh! Why thank you!"

L. A. L. : "No, No. Please. Don't say thank you. I must tell you that because you really have them. I'm only say what I'm seeing. And if I don't say it, I would be an idiot," and so on...

Our customs on courting are very original, and all of them have a touch of romanticism and tradition. We are men who really know how to appreciate the true value of woman, and of love. We know that we live only one life, and we have to enjoy it.

We really enjoy doing nice things for girls, like sending flowers, or bringing a small present with each visit. It doesn't matter what it is, even if it's a match-box, because it is given with love. Why, even a simple dance is extremely romantic for us. Sometimes when dancing, we really feel that we have moved to another world.

We are very jealous with our girls, but of course we don't like them to be jealous with us. There is one interesting argument which could only be solved by knowing who is right. Americans sometimes think that we are stupid for being so romantic. And we sometimes think that they are stupid for not being romantic.

Sometimes in our lives we fall in love with a girl. And when this happens, we want to give her all our possible love. And even if nobody wanted us to be lovers, we would say:

Nobody wants us to be lovers...
Do they know what love is?
Do they know what they are asking?
If God himself asked me to forget her,
I would say NO!
And if as a punishment for my blasphemy,
He would take her with Him,
I would commit suicide,
Go to heaven,
And take her from God.

String Quartet Is Lively As Profs Play Schubert

By MICHAEL HARRIS

Graduate Student in Music
Sunday evening's performance by the Bowling Green String Quartet combined a mixture of pleasing harmony and unique interpretation to some works common to string quartets. Exposing subtleties and dynamics with an array of fresh and daring timbres and colors, the group displayed one of the most perfected ensemble playing yet heard by this listener.

The quartet is composed of four professors from the University's music department: Paul Makara, leader and first violinist; Robert Sanov, violinist; Bernard Linden, violist; and Peter Howard, cellist.

Schubert's Quartet in D minor, "Death and the Maiden," in addition to being a showcase for the above mentioned qualities, was the triumph of the evening. Of particular notice was the second movement (Andante con moto) in various places, the quartet used a very "white" and vibratoless sound, resulting in a blend until now thought produceable only by the organ.

The Webern "Five Pieces for String Quartet," which is already controversial because of its dissonances and seeming formlessness, was not given the quartet's best effort. The faster pieces were attacked instead of approached; the hacking woody sound left the listener uncomfortable, suspended, directionless. The slower pieces were not "ruhig" or calm; awkwardness of execution affected their innate quality to relax one.

Quite the contrary was the Mozart Quartet in B-flat Major. In the first and last movements, the tempi were spry; one could look around and see a number of heads moving to the rhythm. The Menuetto and Adagio were a bit heavy; traces of the intense tone to be used later in the Webern and Schubert were found in these movements. Execution technique-wise was superb and practically flawless.

There is a very small line separating the Bowling Green String Quartet from the groups which automatically come to mind when thinking of string quartets. There is no imitation or facsimile, but a cultivated individual sound. The next performance will be eagerly awaited.

Kansas 'Love-In' Is Midwest Style

Two Wichita State University professors who observed it said: "Nothing's really happened."

Soft textures, lighter weight, and subtly blended colourings reminiscent of the heaths and moors of northern England, give these Shetlands a distinction that can be achieved by no other fabric. ## Debaters Split At Weekend Detroit Meet

The University debate team returned from the motor City Invitational Debates, held last weekend with a 6-6 record.

The "switch-side" team of David V. Klumpp and Robert M. Michalski defeated the University of Illinois, and the United States feated by Marquette University. Taking the negative side, they also won over the University of Pittsburgh but were defeated by Clarion State and West Virginia University.

The affirmative team of Holly Ann Herwick and Roslyn Zane Weedman defeated the University of South Dakota and lost to Capitol University and the University of Kentucky.

The negative team of Richard Crable and Greg H. Gardner were victorious over Ohio State and Western Michigan University but were defeated by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Dan P. Millar, head of forensics, considers the 6-6 record a good start. "It will let the team know where they stand in relation to the other schools in the country," said Mr. Millar.

The debates, held in Detroit, were attended by 72 schools throughout the United States. Butler University won the tournament.

LBJ Stays Firm

WASHINGTON (AP)—A weekend of demonstration has ended in Washington as President Johnson soundly reaffirmed his stand in Vietnam. Thousands of pickets marched on the Pentagon resulting in 680 arrests and 47 persons injured.

Johnson's address Monday to the 18th Triennial Conference of the International Federation of Commercial, Clerical and Technical Workers gave the appearance of a reply to the marchers urging the United States to abandon the fight in Vietnam.

The president said those who started the Vietnam war "cling stubbornly to the belief that their aggression will be rewarded by our frustration, our impatience, our unwillingness to stay the course. Then he added, "It will not be so."

"Peace and stability will come to Asia," Johnson said, "only when the aggressors know that they cannot take another people's land by force."

The State Department declined any official comment on the impact which peace demonstrations here and abroad might have on U.S. policy in Vietnam.

The demonstration itself dwindled away to a couple of pickets early Monday, and the 27,000 workers in the Pentagon returned normally to their jobs.

The Pentagon said the 2500 troops called in to defend the building have departed, but 90 persons were kept busy during the day cleaning the grounds of the 16 tons of debris left by the demonstrators.

Court Has Full Day

Traffic Court met Monday with a docket of cases and two new student associate prosecuting attorneys.

The two associate prosecutors are Gary R. Cooper and David A. Weiner of the newly-formed Bowling Green Law Society. They will assist Edward J. Cox, court prosecuting attorney, with the cases.

In the first case James D. Traphagen was charged by University police with illegal parking, his second offense, in the no parking zone at the Ice Arena. Traphagen defended himself pleading not guilty. He said that he later found that the area where he was parked is not considered an illegal parking area as yet by the University police. The court allowed him continuance of his case until he could provide more evidence in his favor.

Herbert J. Lanese defended himself on the charge of the improper display of his parking decal. The decal was placed on the rear window but police regulations state that the decal should be on the right of the license plate. Lanese was found guilty and charged $5 fine.

Sue E. Wilson pleaded guilty to an improper display of decal and failure to remove last year's decal. The court found her guilty and charged her $3 fine excluding $2 court costs.

Richard S. Aronoff defended Warren G. Russell on a double parking charge in West Fraternity Row on the west side of the drive. This violation was causing a traffic hazard. Russell entered a plea of not guilty. Aronoff summoned Darius L. Bledsoe and Daniel M. Anstine as witnesses to establish his case. The court found Russell not guilty.

Attorney Marsh Elected President Of BG Foundation

Four men active in University affairs were elected directors of the Bowling Green University Foundation, Inc., last week.

Bowling Green attorney C. Richard Marsh was named president of the Foundation, which was established 10 years ago to receive and administer gifts to the University. Mr. Marsh served as Foundation vice president last year and is currently president of the Bowling Green Alumni Association.

Carl Schwyn, of Cygnet, is the new vice president. Mr. Schwyn, a former president of Bowling Green's Board of Trustees, is a member of the University Development Council. He is president of the Cygnet Savings Bank.

James E. Hoff, director of University relations and alumni relations was re-elected secretary and Paul E. Moyer, University treasurer, will continue as Foundation treasurer.

All gifts and grants given to the University are allocated by the foundation for research, scholarships and other educational programs. Purposes of the foundation, which is chartered by the State of Ohio as a non-profit, tax-exempt, organization, include developing and advancing the University and improving and extending its services, properties, and activities.

Is there a chess club on campus? (R.S.)

Reply from the Student Activities Office is that there is not a chess club on campus yet. Maybe you can start the idea rolling, or jumping or whatever those pawns do.

When is John Davidson coming to campus? Really? (J.R.)

John Davidson will perform at 8:15 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 29, in the Grand Ballroom, according to the Student Activities Office.

What is the ratio of graduate to undergraduate students at Bowling Green State University? (Q.U.)

Undergraduate students outnumber the graduate students 10-1, is the information from the Registrar's Office.

Why do we pay salaries of professors who do research and then we are taught by graduate students? (D.H.)

Direct word from Dr. Paul Leedy, provost and vice president of academic affairs, is that "since one of the functions of a university is the support of research, it is only natural that we pay some professors for doing research. One mean of recruiting college faculties for the future is through the use of graduate students as classroom teachers.

"Two false assumptions underlie the question submitted: (1) that is we didn't pay a faculty member for research, he would replace graduate students in the classroom; (2) that graduate students are inferior teachers.

"Neither assumption is necessarily true. Many graduate students are good teachers; by the same token, some regular faculty members are poor teachers."

Willoby Returns For Third Time

Dan Willoby makes his third appearance of the season in the poll as he had a 16-4 record for a total of 32-8.

Tom Hine, sports editor, seems to have run into some difficulty but due to popular demand continues his weekly picks.

Joining Willoby and Hine this week will be John Vornholt, Vikki Wharton, and Ernie Pollock.

Weismann Out For Season

Sophomore Fred Weismann, who was injured in the Bowling Green-Ohio State soccer match Saturday, underwent surgery Monday for a cheekbone fractured in three places.

Weismann was downed in the third quarter of the game, and was removed to the University Hospital at Ohio State.

Coach Mickey Cochrane was in touch with Fred shortly after his operation on Monday, and reports that there were no complications. It is doubtful however, that Weismann will return this season, because protective headgear is not permitted in soccer.

How to turn a 14-year-old boy into a hardened criminal.

Just forget your keys in your car one day.

Tempt some fourteen-year-old boy into going for a joyride.

Oh, he could be a good kid — just weak.

And taking your car might be the first time he's ever broken the law.

But the minute he hops behind that wheel and turns the key, his life may be ruined.

He'll drive around for a few hours, endangering the life of every man, woman and child who crosses his path.

He might be caught the very first time he takes a car. Or if he's not caught by the police he'll leave your car somewhere and decide to do it again, and again, until the day he does get caught.

Teen-agers steal more than 1,000 cars every day.

The U. S. Department of Justice and your state and local law-enforcement agencies are concerned.

They know that taking a car for a joyride is just the first step.

Our prisons are filled with men who started out this way. They went on to become thieves, muggers, and even killers.

You can do something to help solve this terrible problem.

Whenever you get out of your car, even for a second, take your keys. Lock your car.

Every time you do this you may keep a good boy from going bad.

Don't help a good boy go bad. Lock your car. Take your keys.

Water Polo Coming To Bowling Green

Water Polo at Bowling Green? That's right. Water polo is coming to Bowling Green. It's been here for a few weeks, but only on an intramural basis. However, before the year is out it is planned to be on an intercollegiate schedule.

The plans are to set it up on a club status, such as the one hockey is now under. It will not in any way be affiliated with the Mid American Conference.

Swimming Coach Tom Stubbs started up the Water polo as a conditioner for his swimmers, but the idea is working so well that he plans to keep it going.

So far four teams have been playing each other in a round robin. All-stars will be selected from these four teams and will play Ohio State in a match scheduled for November 10.

Swimming season will then interrupt the schedule then until March 30 when the tankers will then resume water polo.

At present seven teams have been set up for a water polo league. They are: Ohio State, Kenyon, Ohio Wesleyan, Miami, Ohio University, Denison, and Bowling Green.

Next year it is hoped that a regular team can be formed to take over during the swimming season.

Three Way Tie In MAC Chase

There's something familiar about the Mid-American Conference football standings again this week. After the dust settled on last Saturday's contests, three teams found themselves deadlocked in a first place tie with identical 3-1 conference records.

And what's more, it's liable to stay that way for another week unless the so-called underdogs come through with some surprises this week. Western Michigan, which went into last Saturday's action with a 3-0 MAC mark, slipped into the tie with Toledo and Miami when the surging Toledo Rockets bombarded the Broncos, 35-9. Miami gained its third conference win by fighting off a second half Ohio rally to win, 22-15.

Quarterback John Schneider of Toledo, the league's leader in passing and total offense, engineered a surprisingly easy win over WMU. He hit on 9 of 13 passes for 85 yards and rushed for another 70 including an 11-yard TD scamper. Teammate Roland Moss, 215-pound tailback, rushed for 171 yards on 29 carries, 157 yards coming in the first half. His performance boosted him to second place behind Miami's Al Moore in conference rushing.

At Oxford, the amazing Mr. Moore turned in an awesome performance, as the 190-pound senior lugged the ball 36 times for 232 yards, including a 73-yard scoring run in the game's waning minutes to pull the Redskins from behind. The 36 carries and 232 yards are both new school records at Miami. Moore, who has averaged 6.4 yards per carry in his four MAC games, has now rushed for over 100 yards in his last three outings.

Frosh Booters Top Ohio State JV's, 5-1

By GARY DAVIS
Assistant Sports Editor

Probably the only consolation to the varsity soccer teams' loss to Ohio State, came when the frosh booters drubbed the hosts junior varsity, 5-1.

In rolling to their first win of the season, the freshmenbooters of coach Jack Hess, rolled up impressive edges in all departments. The victory leaves the squad's record at 1-2, with three encounters remaining.

Three Falcons hit the scoring column, providing the Birds, with a 5-0 lead before the Buckeyes lone tally with only 1.47 left in the final quarter.

Mitch Beer and Dikron Hazirjian added a pair of goals to the Falcons' cause, the latter getting an assist to his credit. George Crandall rounded out the scoring with his first tally of the campaign.

The hosts were limited to under two shots per quarter, by a spirited freshman defense. "The defense was tremendous," said Jack Hess. "We switched to that of the varsity instead of the tripod," he explained.

The freshman wasted no time in getting on the scoreboard, as Hazirjian fired in his first goal at 2:57 of the opening period. Except for one fast break by the Buckeyes, the action was completely dominated by the young Falcons. Four corner kicks kept the hosts in trouble.

The second period was a standstill after Mitch Beer landed his first goal at 4:40 of the action, but the Birds sprang to life in the third rolling to a 8-1 edge in shooting. Beer drilled in a rebound for his second tally at 9:57 of the quarter.

George Crandall booted in an assist by Hazirjian at 6:34 of the final quarter, handing the Falcons a 4-0 lead. Dikron came back himself only 33 seconds later to add the squads' fifth goal. The frosh failed to ease up and kept the Bucks on edge with four straight corner kicks.

Nyitray Honored As Top Backman

P.J. Nyitray returned to form as the field general of the Falcons and it earned him the honor of Mr. Back of the week. Nyitray, having his troubles all season, turned in a solid performance last Saturday and led the Falcons to a 7-6 upset win over the Golden Flashes of Kent State.

However, Nyitray was hard pressed for his Mr. Back honors. Eddie Coletti played his first game of the season, returning from a leg injury, and picked up 21 yards in just five carries. This led coach Gibson to say, "Coletti is ready for more action. He will play someplace this week, I don't know where, but he will play."

Also Sophomore halfback Bol Zimpfer picked up 110 yards rushing this week to give Nyitray serious contention for the honor.

Joe Pearce picked off his third interception of the seasons to receive the Mr. Interception honor. Pearce has returned the three interceptions for a total of 25 yards.

For his excellent job on the offensive line, Chet Boyer was awarded the Mr. Block of the week honor. On the defensive line, Larry Smith, another Falcon forced to sit some of the season out because of an injury, won the Mr. Tackle award.

In the statistics department, Bob Zimpfer is leading the team in rushing with a total of 271 yards in 69 carries for an average of 3.9 yards per carry.

Nyitray has completed 31 of 75 passing attempts for 367 yards and one touchdown. Eddie Jones has caught 15 passes for 195 yards to lead that department.

Fred Mathews continues to lead the team in scoring with 12 points.

Perry's

The Difference

Jim Perry, the Falcons place kicker, may not see much action and may not bother too many coaches, but there is one coach in the MAC that will be glad to see him go . . . Leo Strang, of Kent State.

Two years ago it was BG over Kent 7-6. Yep, that's right it was Jim Perry's extra point which won the game and again this year it was Jim Perry.

Shake-A-Pudd'n®. It's something else. Just put water and powder in the cup, snap the lid, shake for 30 seconds, let it set — and you've got pudding. In Chocolate, Vanilla, Butterscotch or Banana. Each Shake-A-Pudd'n package comes complete with four puddings, spoons, lids, and throwaway shakers. Everything is disposable. But the best thing about Shake-A-Pudd'n is that you can hide it away in your room until just the right moment — say 12 midnight, right before a big chemistry final. You might even call it food for thought.
